aup file then remove that part and save your.aup file. This file has 1474 sounds that are used for drum tracks in your Pro Tools session. It also has an html file that you can use to view this file. This Drum Kit contains: * 1) 1474 Custom Drum Sounds [29.7MB] * 2) 385 Drum Kit Sounds [2.9MB] * 3) 350 Custom Instrument Sounds [26.7MB] The html file in this zip contains all the sound files that are in the drum kit. If you want to get your hands on the drum kit files themselves you can download it from HERE. Just go to the drum kit zip and you will find your drum kit that's located in the "Drum Kit Files" folder. I recommend downloading the zip and the html file so you can download these sounds later on in your session. You can use the AUP (Audio Unit Package) like a plug-in for your tempo marking in your song. You can use the AUP for speeding up and slowing down your song. This is what I use, but you can use it however you want. If you want to check out the AUP you can read about it HERE. I have a video tutorial about how to use the drum kit from the AUP: And here is a video about how to use the AUP in general: I hope you find this post helpful. I also have other drum kits on my website. Check them out HERE.
